THE CITY OF THE BY AND BY. "By the street of By and By we reach the House of Never."—Old Spanish Proverb.

Dack and swift and still a river Hurries by, We must launch our boat upon it,

You and L We must leave the waves to bear us, From the shore, Knowing well that we may seek it

Where the river in the ocean Finds its rest, hall we find the mystic island Of our quest?

lime the river is, the island No-man's land; ever voyager returneth From that strand.

In the sea's warm heart it lieth, Broad and fair; Palm trees fringe its curving shore lin Birds nest there.

and among the trees far inland. 'Neath the summer sky,

Rise the white towers of a city, The city of By and By. Grand beyond compare

Ever its gates stand open:

Let us enter there. Through its midst a river floweth; Those who drink Of that stream shall lose their burdens

On its brink. Very still is the mystic city; From its walls

Never sentinel challenges, Never warder calls, And the voices that break the silence. Are echoes of those we heard and loved In the long ago.

By the western gates, where latest The lingering sunbeams fall, Over its sheltering palm trees, Over its marble walls, ds a fair and stately mansion, Where peace abideth ever,

At the door, Stretching kindly hands to greet us, As of yore.

Whither tend All our life's long, weary wanderings,

Ever sought by weary mortals,

Ne'er possessed. Free forever,

We reach the city of By and By, The House of Never. -Margaret Husted, in Toledo Blade.
